Oscar Egg, of Switzerland, and Peter Van Kampen, of Holland, won the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden last night after a final hour of continuous sprinting that had a crowd of thousands in a bedlam of excitement as the contending teams fought fiercely for the lead in the series of one-mile sprints that marked the last hour of riding.

It was Egg's sensational sprinting that was the feature of the closing scenes of one of the most thrilling races that was ever staged on the Garden track, for, after Brocco and Coburn had run away into a lead of three-quarters of a lap, following the tenth sprint, the great Swiss leaped to his wheel and after ten minutes of desperate riding caught Coburn.

The point totals for Egg and Van Kampen were 2,291, with Coburn and Brocco 877. Rutt and Lorenz had scored 1,081 points, but because they lost three laps in the last twenty minutes of the race, during a terrific jam started by Brocco, they finished in third place.

The rest of the field finished as follows: fourth, Chapman and Lawrence, 74 points; fifth, Smith and Taylor, 235 points; sixth, McNamara and Thomas, 230 points; seventh, Behl and Lemay, 220 points.

The team of Byron and Keenan, eight laps behind the leaders, quit the race at 8:40 o'clock last night. The last hour of the race served to show that Egg and Van Kampen were the speediest men in the race.

The total mileage at the end of the twenty-third sprint was 2,314 miles and 6 laps for Egg and Van Kampen and Brocco and Coburn.

Rutt Trails Van Kampen

The fleet Van Kampen ran away from the rest of the field, leaving Rutt with a second heat, beating out Rutt with a wonderful burst of speed on the last lap. Coburn was the second, and Brocco third. Oscar led all the way through the last lap, crossing the line by a length ahead of Lorenz, eased up.

The fleet Van Kampen ran away with the second heat, beating out Rutt with a wonderful burst of speed on the last lap. Coburn was the second, and Brocco third. Oscar led all the way through the last lap, crossing the line by a length ahead of Lorenz, eased up.

The teams of Egg and Van Kampen and Rutt and Lorenz were constantly worried in these sprints. Brocco and Coburn should attempt to steal a lap, for this was the only chance. After that of winning the race and they devoted all their attention to that end.

Brocco won the fourth sprint by twenty yards, as the result of his attempt to start a "jam." The little French-Italian had opened up a gap of thirty yards, leaving the rest of the field, and Brocco, relieving him, added ten more yards. Van Kampen had cut this down to twenty yards by the time the finish line was crossed.

Egg and Van Kampen continued to pile up a big lead on points in the closing sprints, winning the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth. Brocco nearly gained a lap.

At the finish of the tenth sprint Brocco started a "jam" that had thousands in the Garden in a tremendous uproar. At one time Coburn and his partner were literally "dashed" ahead, with Van Kampen "dashed" behind, and Egg not out of his bunk.

After what seemed an agonizing delay to those who were rooting for Egg and Van Kampen to win, the race began to come on the track and started a chase after the fleeing runaways that has seldom been equaled in the Garden.

With furious speed, riding one against two, Egg cut down the overwhelming lead foot by foot. Every breath of the big amateur hunter was standing and yelling in a frenzy of excitement as Egg finally caught Brocco after a ride of more than a mile and a quarter.

During these five minutes of thrill after thrill the Rutt and Lorenz team was lapped twice, practically putting them out of the race. Both the Germans were literally "dashed" to the ground, and the crowd was cheering them all through the race, hoping to "hoor" the foreigners.

At the end of the eighteenth sprint Egg and Van Kampen looked like certain winners, barring the loss of a lap, which did not look more than barely possible, with only fifteen minutes to go. At this point Egg and Van Kampen had a total of 2,291 points, while Brocco and Coburn's 870. Rutt and Lorenz, who had gathered about 1,080, ceased to figure in the points after losing their laps. They lost a third lap near the finish.

New Association For Tennis Clubs In Three States

Organizations in 35-Mile Radius Form League and Adopt Stringent Rules

The organization of the new Metropolitan Tennis Association, which embraces all clubs within a radius of thirty-five miles of City Hall, New York, and includes clubs in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, was perfected last night at a meeting held in the Hotel McAlpin.

Charles S. Landers, of the West Side Tennis Club, was elected president of the new organization. Forty clubs took charter membership. Charter members will be admitted until April 15.

The constitution and by-laws were adopted, the most drastic provision in them being that stringent rules for tennis tournaments, prescribing: Entries must be made in writing, and defaults two tournaments be shall be suspended unless a satisfactory explanation is given the committee.

Application has been made to the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association for tennis center charter for the new Metropolitan Association.

Following officers were elected: Vice-president, Charles Chambers, Kings County Tennis Club, Brooklyn; secretary, J. W. Meresau, University Heights Tennis Club, Manhattan; treasurer, Louis B. Dailey, Glenwood Tennis Club, East Orange, N. J.

The executive committee will consist of the following: At large—Messrs. Landers, Chambers, Meresau, J. J. Dailey, Manhattan and Bronx—A. J. Ostendorf, New York Tennis Club, Brooklyn; J. W. Meresau, Atlantic Yacht Club, Sea Gate, Long Island exclusive of Kings and Queens counties; Walter L. Pate, Nassau County Club, Glen Cove; L. J. Staten, West Side Tennis Club, New York; John D. Ogilby, Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, New Jersey; Haddon Irvin, Hoboken Tennis Club, Westchester; and Connecticut—George Walker, Westchester Tennis Club, West County—C. G. Heymann, West Side Tennis Club.

In the way of total bases, for example, you may not have known that Sisler last season led Ruth by 399 to 388, and this in spite of the fact that Ruth gathered 216 bases by his home runs alone.

Ruth led in home runs by 54 to 19. But Sisler led in three base hits by a span of 18 to 9 and in doubles by 49 to 36.

Two Peculiar Features

Sisler, with 19 home runs and 49 doubles, was quite a slugger on his own hook, yet rival pitchers fanned him but 19 times, while he hooked Ruth for 80.

A still more peculiar feature is that while pitchers walked Ruth 148 times they only issued 46 passes to Sisler. Speaker drew 97 passes, many of them intentional walks.

Just why pitchers refused to walk Sisler, when he was capable of batting .407, a hard, dangerous hitter in a pinch, is one of the mysteries of the year.

Sisler was a harder, more dangerous hitter than Speaker, yet Speaker was walked more than twice as often.

Scoring Values

There used to be an old slogan to this effect—"A base on balls is as good as a hit."

This seems to have been proved in the case of Sisler and Ruth.

The Annual Spring Reveille

Once upon a midnight dreary—
This is all I'll grab from Poe—
While I pondered in my eerie
Little Harlem bungalow,
Came a hunch that whispered to me
"Spring, old kick, is drawing near!"
And I heard the echoes woo me
With the chorus of a cheer.

I could hear spring's echoes bleating
All around the sunlit place;
I could see Hugh Jennings eating
Tender grass around third base.
As I saw the big "Babe" looming
At the plate with form immense,
I could hear the echoes booming
From his smash across the fence.

When I opened an epistle,
Written to me in a scrawl,
I could hear the bluebird's whistle,
And the thud of bat and ball.
Of all harbingers the leader,
Like a May breeze through the flat—
"To oblige a constant reader
Publish 'Casey at the Bat.'"

The Sultans of Swat

We are now dwelling in the reign of the two Georges—Sisler and Ruth. And, inasmuch as they promise to be the two foremost figures in the realm of swat this season, a comparison of their last records might not be amiss.

In the way of total bases, for example, you may not have known that Sisler last season led Ruth by 399 to 388, and this in spite of the fact that Ruth gathered 216 bases by his home runs alone.

Jamaica High Wins At Rifle Shooting For Du Pont Trophy

Commercial Student Stars as Individual Marksman in His First Time Out

Jamaica High School continues to lead the P. S. A. L. schools of the city in rifle shooting. Yesterday morning the Queensborough lads increased their long string of victories by winning the Du Pont Trophy on the P. S. A. L. indoor range at the Brooklyn Athletic Field.

The superb marksmanship of each individual on the Jamaica team was responsible for the remarkable score of 1049 out of a possible 1200. The lowest individual score by a member of the victorious sextet was 172, and the finished among the first ten in individual totals. Evander Childs sprang a surprise by taking second honors with 991, and Commercial finished third with 955.

The individual star was John O'Connor, of Commercial High School. It was his first appearance in a championship shoot and he made the high score of 183 out of 200, 88 standing and 95 in prone shooting. Harold Jackus, of Jamaica, trailed O'Connor in individual effectiveness, with 180.
